

Presse / 2006 / Mario looks for paradise – the best place for "man" to live

Traveling through the Emirates as a sheik – Mario Barth conquers the desert
Comedy meets cultural communications: from Friday, December 1 at 10:15 p.m., Mario Barth is on a mission for RTL to find the best place in the world for men to live. His first destination: the United Arab Emirates.

Traveling through the Emirates as a sheik – Mario Barth conquers the desert
Comedy meets cultural communications: from Friday, December 1 at 10:15 p.m., Mario Barth is on a mission for RTL to find the best place in the world for men to live. His first destination: the United Arab Emirates.

Fast cars, the world's most expensive hotels and fancy yachts – Dubai is considered to be the most luxurious of all El Dorados. But is the emirate actually a paradise for men? This is the primary question for comedian Mario Barth in his new travel comedy show, "Mario sucht das Paradies – wo lebt Mann am besten?" ("Mario looks for paradise – the best place for "man" to live") which premieres on Friday, December 1 at 10:15 p.m. Whether skiing in the heat of the desert, a meeting with the biggest Arab music producer or an extraordinary desert trip in Abu Dhabi – full of beans, Mario sets off on his trip in search of the typical customs and hierarchies in the Emirates. And always the question is in his mind: where is the best place for "man" to live? With his unique approach, the cheeky chap from Berlin gets to know country and people while experiencing one adventure after another.

In the second episode of "Mario sucht das Paradies – wo lebt Mann am besten?", which RTL will be airing on Friday, December 8 at 10:15 p.m., Mario Barth is traveling to the US, embarking on a wild discovery tour.